“ When you look into someone's eyes and make vows until "death do us part," you never dream that someday you will be parted by death. Souls that have been joined together are torn asunder and there is the pain of searing loss. However, the same God who has taken your loved one, has welcomed her into His presence where she will have fullness of joy forevermore. Now I pray that this same God who has sustained you through the trials and victories of your life together, will provide comfort and healing at this time of your loss. ”
