During retirement Logan volunteered at the Orphan Grain Train. Logan was a self-taught accordion player; even though he couldn't read music, he could play songs just by listening and memorizing the tone.

Logan loved playing his accordion at many different nursing homes and senior centers. Logan enjoyed polka music; he was also a member of the Norfolk Men's Chorus.

He was a member of Shepherd of Peace Lutheran Church in Norfolk, the American Legion and served as a volunteer EMT and firefighter in Battle Creek.

Survivors include his spouse of 62 years, Phyllis Schutt of Norfolk; his children, Clinton (Doris) Schutt of Tilden, Dawn (Gaylen) Freeman of Norfolk and Denise (Gary) Heppner of Norfolk; six grandchildren; three step-grandchildren; seven great-grandchildren; and numerous nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by his parents, William and Agnes, and a sister, Lucille Schutt.

Organist for the service will be Jim Marshall. In lieu of flowers, family requests that memorials can be made to the family for later designation.
