“I hope you don't mind, I put down in words how wonderful life is when you are in the world, It's a little bit funny these feelings inside”. You sang those words to the Elton John song at the Sports Royalty night. And now, it's funny the feelings I feel inside. I remember we use to sing “we will, we will, rock you!” as Panthers in 78. You are the champion, my friend. You kept on fighting to the end! You were the champion in my eyes at NHS, NTCC, many city league championships, just to name few, as teammates. The memories and dreams shared as two young men in teens and twenties, believing together. The thrill of overtime, victory, competing as boys, friendship, growing up, joy, music, your Sonja, hunting, poker, head butts, sharing that chemistry feeling of anticipation that is known only by team mates during a full court press with seconds left in a game. The times we laughed and celebrated, a fellow boyhood friend named Randall. Memories of Todd Randall Sohl. The Sohlman shared parts of my life. My prayers to Kyle and Kellen. May God be a home where peace abides, tranquility prevails and love grows now and forever. Say hello to Sonja.
